The author with J. B. Rhine, parapsychology pioneer in laboratory research, as he conducts a PK experiment using dice in a mechanical tumbler long before this story started. It had no particular purpose. Was incidental. Actually, a pretend-photo. Even the test was posed.

For whose benefit?

The Universe's, of course.

Harrell writes, "And who was looking through this wormhole? These wormholes? That shortened the connection trails in my life. Made visible the trails I couldn't see. But there they were! In the wormhole point of view. The hourglass, the telescope, the microscope. Now given to me. Why was this person there so long ago? Well, because now was on the way."

Tracking energy as it goes back and forth synchronistically, as with a life of its own, a mind of its own, she detects major shortcuts consciousness went through. And came back, snapping connections into place.

"The Grand Enigma, quantum beings, field beings, quantum AI, life and death questions, prisoners in the cave, psychokinesis, Quantum 2.0, compelling conversations with Daniel Bailey, new dimensions, light and time, light body conferences, spirit committees, conversations with creative imagination, the nature of consciousness, the nature of reality, energy transfers, teleportation, what is the human being truly capable of, and that barely skims the surface. Margaret Ann Harrell is The Grand Enigma. Talks with her are treasures beyond measure. Her new book, My Life in a Wormhole: A Memoir of Cosmic Timing, is a masterpiece from the future."—Ron Whitehead, U.S. National Lifetime Beat Poet Laureate
